- The techniques they are using such as mono-printing and the processes necessary to complete their print.
- Discuss what has worked and not worked and why they think this.
- Discuss what they think of their work as they are completing it– what do they think? How can they develop this further?

Be able to:

- Demonstrate relief printing
- Demonstrate mixed media mono-printing
- Include light and dark areas in their prints

Key Vocabulary

Tonal contrast	Creates visual interest or excitement in a painting. You need light and dark areas in an image to create tonal contrast.
Mono-printing	This method of printing is to make unique prints. Draw patterns, shapes and designs directly onto an inked surface, usually an acrylic sheet. Gently lay a piece of paper on top of the inked surface to pick up the design.
Relief printing	relief printing, in art printmaking, a process consisting of cutting or etching a printing surface in such a way that all that remains of the original surface is the design to be printed. Examples of relief-printing processes include woodcut, anastatic printing (also called relief etching), linocut, and metal cut.

Prints can link to the wonders children learn about and patterns/colours and artwork from The Americas . Their mixed media print can be a collection of patterns, colours, shapes, architecture from the places they study.

The final piece of artwork can combine relief and mono-printing techniques
